The Authors

Kenneth Belew is a native of Cobb County, Georgia. He served more than twenty years in the United States Army, retiring in 1994. A lifelong interest in the history of the Civil War led him to write staff ride studies for the Army on the battles of Chickamauga and Kennesaw Mountain, Georgia and the Andersonville, Georgia prisoner of war camp. Ken lives in Aberdeen, North Carolina.

Douglas D. Scott is a native of Bethany, Missouri. He is an archeologist with the Midwest Archeological Center, National Park Service. He has directed extensive research in the area of military archeology, with many of his investigations focusing on Civil War and Indian War sites in the West. These include Fort Leavenworth, Kansas old post, and the Battles of the Little Bighorn and Bighole, Montana, and Washita and Honey Springs, Oklahoma. Doug lives in Lincoln, Nebraska.
